

SAMPLES OF INTERNATIONAL DOCUMENTS RELATED TO FAMILY
COMPOSITION, INCOME AND IMMOVABLE PROPERTIES FOR THE 2023/24
BENEFITS APPLICATION
&
DETAILS FOR THE CONSULAR DOCUMENTS TO BE PROVIDED

In these pages you can find (1) more details about the info you must provide in the consular documents and (2) a list of samples divided by Country.

The documents described below are only an example based on the previous years documentation. Any other document that meets the requirements at the art. 30 par. 3 of the notice of competition (or in the guidelines booklet) can be acceptable.

If students submit any documents listed below but those ones do not meet the requirements because of any reasons as per the art. 30 par. 3 or in the guidelines booklet, the documents will be rejected.

The names of the issuing institutions you find here are the result of a translation from the Italian version of the documents we got during the previous years. Therefore, they might not match with the official English name of your Country's institution.

The documentation described below is divided by Country. Unfortunately, since there are no samples from many countries, you might not find the samples for your specific situation. In that case, you must follow the description of the required documents at the art. 30 par. 3 of the 2023/24 notice of competition, in our guidelines booklet and also in the current file and find out the documentation that meets the requirements with the institutions of your Country directly.

If students have any doubt about specific documents, they can open a ticket at the section 4 (international students) to ask their question: however, the whole documentation will be not valuated by ticket. In fact, the correctness of the documents can be assessed only by the EDISU staff, once they receive the original copies of students' documentation.

The documents described below do not include the certificates related to the movable properties (bank accounts, deposits, shares, bonds etc.). Normally, for every Country, a certificate issued by the bank or the private company involved is required. It is acceptable also in English, French or Spanish and not legalized.

In order to prove the lack of movable properties (bank accounts, deposits, shares, bonds etc.), students must submit the related certificate issued by the office in charge of their Country or, if it is not available, an affidavit or any other notary documents in which it is stated that one or more family members are not owner of movable properties. In case students submit the affidavit/notary document, it must be translated into Italian and legalized.

EDISU will verify the authenticity of the documents: if they find any fake or falsification, the student will be excluded from the definitive ranking list and reported to the fees office of her/his university in order to warn them for the fee reduction procedure.

(1) DETAILS FOR THE CONSULAR DOCUMENTS TO BE PROVIDED

Here you can find the details about the information to include in the economic documentation for all the international students (Extra-UE and UE). You can also find the most common exceptions. If in the following list you don't find your specific case, we ask you to contact us by our ticketing service on our web-site. Furthermore, it is possible to check down here the documentation submitted during the past years, country by country.

If it is not possible, you can submit an economic-affective extraneousness certificate which can be in unoriginal copy, without legalization.
